Locations: Burdekin x 2 | Meringa x 1

BSES Limited is the principal research, development and extension company for the Australian sugarcane industry and our vision is to support a profitable and sustainable sugarcane industry in Australia.

BSES Limited is seeking three Development Officers to join its Professional Extension and Communications Unit. This Unit is responsible for technology transfer within the Australian sugarcane industry.

The Development Officer will develop packages of research results tailored for user groups by collating and integrating research results and knowledge into packages for dissemination and demonstration to sugar industry extension providers.

Part of the packaging will be the design and conduct of group extension courses and events for industry-wide delivery.

The activities for these positions include but are not limited to:

- Collate/integrate research results and information.
- Package concise material to assist the industry in improving sugar production, reducing costs or improving environmental outcomes.
- Conduct courses, field days, demonstrations or other events to present the packages to sugar industry extension providers.

The successful candidates will have:

- Tertiary qualifications in agricultural science, environmental science, business or education or significant experience in agricultural crop production.
- Comprehensive understanding of agriculture and production processes.
- At least 3 to 5 years' experience in extension, training and communication in an agricultural provider environment.
- Demonstrated experience in developing training and information packages.
- Must possess team skills, flexibility, tolerance, initiative and the willingness to provide support to other team members and work under pressure.

A detailed position description can be found on our website at www.bses.com.au. The selection criteria must be addressed and included with your application.
